

ABSTRACT

An impedance matching feed is disclosed for use in a ridge waveguide which allows a coaxial transmission line, generally having an impedance of fifty ohm, to be matched to a ridge waveguide of arbitrary impedance. The matching feed consist of 5 a transformer which is located inside the ridge of the waveguide, a probe and a quarter wave choke.